

Step 6: After the grievance procedure

Talking to staff

The grievance outcome and details must remain confidential. However, where appropriate, it can be a good idea for the employer to talk privately with any staff involved in the grievance.

This can help avoid any negative effects on the business, for example:

- bad feeling
- gossip
- bullying
- low work morale

Keeping a record

No matter what the outcome, it's a good idea for employers to keep a written record of all grievance cases to help with any questions or similar cases in the future.

In line with data protection law, records should be:

- confidential
- only be kept for as long as necessary

You can read a guide to data privacy from the Information Commissioner's Office \(ICO\).

If the employee needs to take things further

If the employee feels they've tried everything and their problem is still not resolved, they could in some cases make a claim to an employment tribunal.

6. Further help and support

If you need help with a grievance, you can call the Acas helpline to talk through your options.

Acas also provide:

- training on managing grievance procedures
- tailored support for employers

Related content

/acas-code-of-practice-on-disciplinary-and-grievance-procedures

Call the Acas helpline