

Acas publishes coronavirus home working advice

20 March 2020

Acas Chief Executive, Susan Clews, said:

"The coronavirus outbreak is impacting all of our working lives at the moment. The government's public health advice is to work from home where possible to help prevent the spread of the virus within the wider community.

"Employers and staff who are following this advice may be home working for their very first time and unsure about their rights or how to best manage the situation.

"Our new advice offers practical advice around homeworking that includes managing staff mental health, handling childcare responsibilities and dealing with remote working systems."

See Acas's new home working advice.

Media enquiries

Contact the Acas press office.